JAMES HERSH DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Gettysburg Citizen Dies while Resting in Chair at his Home. Had Taken Active Part in Politics.

James Hersh died suddenly Sunday afternoon about four o'clock while taking his customary afternoon rest in a chair at his home on Baltimore street. He was aged 79 years, 6 months and 10 days. He had been about but a short time before he was stricken and had been talking with friends on the streets of town.

Mr. Hersh was born in New Oxford, one of a family of fourteen children. His parents were George and Nancy (McClellan) Hersh the latter a sister of Colonel McClellan. He was educated in the common schools of New Oxford and later at New Oxford Academy. At the opening of the Civil War he enlisted in Company I, 87th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers and on September 12, 1861, was made second lieutenant of his company and on March 1, 1863, quartermaster of the regiment. He was captured and made a prisoner on June 15 of the same year, at Winchester, Virginia, and was confined to Libby prison for nine months. He was exchanged and joined his regiment at Cold Harbor, Virginia, June 1, 1864 and was discharged from the service at the expiration of his term, October 13, 1864.

Mr. Hersh was for many years active in Republican politics in Adams County. He was sheriff from 1872 to 1875, was frequently chairman of his party in this county and always took a keen interest in politics both local and national. He was a delegate in 1880 to the Chicago convention which nominated James A. Garfield for President, being one of the famous 306 who voted for General Grant and he was always proud of the medal which was given to him in honor of the event. He was a member of the Grand Army and for some years was in the National Guard of the state with the rank of captain.

For many years after the close of the war he had been engaged before his enlistment. He had a 600 acre farm and took great pride in raising fine stock and poultry which he did with much success.

He leaves his wife, and two sons, William Hersh Esq., and Frank Hersh, both of whom live at home. Of the family of fourteen, of which he was the ninth, only two now survive, a sister, Mrs. Louisa Clippinger, of New Oxford, and a brother, Paul Hersh, of Ohio.

Funeral from his late residence on Baltimore street Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The services will be private.

MRS. GEORGE R. CULP

Mrs. Jane Culp, widow of George R. Culp, died on Saturday evening, August 3, at her home on North Stratton street aged 70 years, 8 months and 3 days.

Funeral on Tuesday, August 6, at 10.30 from her late residence, Dr. T. J. Barkley officiating. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

WARMER AT WEEK'S END

Further respite from unusually warm weather in any part of the country during the next week or 10 days is indicated in a bulletin issued by the Weather Bureau.

"The first part of the coming week," says it, "will give moderate temperatures in the Eastern and Southern States, followed by a change to somewhat warmer weather the latter half of the week. Over the Middle West and the Northwest moderate temperature for the season is probable throughout the week, while west of the Rocky Mountains temperatures will average near or slightly below the normal."

"The weather during the week will be generally fair except for a short period of local rains attending the eastward movement of a disturbance that will appear in the Far West Tuesday or Wednesday, across the Middle West about Thursday and the Eastern States near the end of the week. Cooler weather will follow this disturbance."

PICNIC: St. Francis Xavier parish will hold its annual picnic at Rosesteel's Round Top, on Wednesday, August 7th, and the various committees have completed arrangements providing for the pleasure and comfort of all who attend. Dinner and supper will be served at 25 cents a meal. Games of various descriptions will be had and there will be refreshments in abundance. A full orchestra will furnish the music for dancing afternoon and evening. All welcome. In case of rain Wednesday picnic will be held Thursday.

WANTED: lady clerk for department store. Experienced clerk preferred. Address S. Times office.

BOY SCOUTS ARE OFF FOR CAMP

Leave by Train, Horseback, Bicycles, and on Foot for Twelve Days' Camp Near Boiling Springs. In High Spirits.

In high spirits the forty Gettysburg Boy Scouts left town this morning for their twelve day outing at "Camp 68" Island Grove Park near Boiling Springs. Fond parents who daily have trouble to get their boys out of bed before seven o'clock experienced no such difficulty this morning and ringing alarm clocks had the youngsters up soon after the hour of four was struck.

The early Reading train took about thirty of the khaki-clad boys, many of them carrying haversacks, scout axes and other necessities, but the majority of the goods had preceded them in a freight car which was packed on Saturday. The Scouts who went by train today were given a private car and they took possession of it in fine style.

Scout Master Flagle went on the train with the boys and, immediately upon their arrival at the camp site, unpacking of goods and the pitching of camp were begun. Not many hours after this was started more of the Scouts who chose other ways of going began to arrive. Carrol McDonnell and Ralph Deatrick decided to hike the entire distance and were on their way long before the train left. Albert Menchey rode to camp on horseback while three other boys rode on their bicycles.

All the Scouts have big plans on foot and are arranging for many celebrations. It will be a camp where "early to bed and early to rise" will be the rule and good, healthy sport will mark all the activities. Every day will be visitors' day and the Scouts are prepared to entertain all their friends—for an hour or so.

WORRIED ABOUT CORN

Adams County corn growers are considerably worried over the cool nights. Except for the hot spells of the late June and early July, King Corn has had no really good weather, however pleasant the temperature and atmospheric conditions generally have been to humanity at large.

What the corn needs now are days and days of sweltering, burning sun and hot, sultry nights. Farmers are hoping that August will bring them. They don't care whether much rain falls this month or not, for the corn now stands sufficiently high to shade its own ground thoroughly, so that little or no apprehension need be entertained even from a prolonged dry spell.

The corn is now from two to three weeks late. Corn harvest ordinarily begins in the southern part of the state about the second week of September and in the northern part ten days or two weeks later. The backward corn means that harvesting cannot be started at the most favorable spots before September 15; in many fields the harvest cannot start much, if any, before October 1.

This summer, so far, has been far from admirable for corn, although there is no danger of a poor crop if conditions continue no less favorable than they have been up-to-date.

Oats, on the contrary, has produced a splendid crop this year. So has timothy, clover and all hays and grasses, including the productive alfalfa. Wheat, though small in quantity, was first class in quality. It is a bumper year for potatoes. Peaches and apples are good, where there are any crops at all and no cause for any complaint exists as regards berries, small fruits and garden truck.

TEACHERS ELECTED

Miss Mary V. Heller, of Biglerville, has been elected teacher of Brady's school in Franklin township. G. Roy Coulson, of Huntingdon township, has been elected teacher of Wolford's school in Latimore township, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roy Starry.

LAST DAYS OF CHAUTAUQUA

Seven or Ten Day Chautauqua for Next Year. Possibly Neither but Summer Assembly will Meet here for Sure.

With today's sessions the Chautauqua of 1912 comes to an end. The question of next year's Chautauqua still hangs in the balance. To secure a ten day meeting one thousand two dollar tickets must be pledged while up to this time only 425 have been subscribed, and of these 200 are guaranteed by the Lutheran Summer Assembly.

This organization will meet here again next summer whether or not the Chautauqua is held. If it is held the Assembly will meet at the same time and carry on the work much as it did the past week. A distinct change in the Assembly was decided upon before adjournment on Saturday, which makes it an organization by itself, not dependent on any other body. In the past the committee in charge has consisted of two members from each of the different synods in this section. In the future it will be the Lutheran Summer Assembly Association to which any one may belong by paying an annual fee of $1.00. In view of the annual fee no registration fee will be charged.

The following officers were chosen: president, Rev. S. Winfield Herman, Harrisburg; vice president, Dr. W. A. Granville Gettysburg; secretary, Dr. F. G. Gottwald, York; treasurer, Rev. J. H. Meyer, New York.

After the meeting of the Chautauqua on Sunday evening an informal session was held to discuss the prospects for next year. In view of the difficult task of securing the thousand subscriptions it was suggested that Gettysburg be content with a seven day Chautauqua, which is the length of time consumed in practically all the other Chautauqua towns. By this means only 700 tickets would be required, a saving of $800.00. The attendance at only one or two of this year's meetings reached a thousand and to guarantee that many season tickets is thought by many, too much to expect of local people.

The sessions Saturday and Sunday were all well attended. The Dietrichs, magicians and entertainers, were satisfactory at both sessions Saturday. In the evening four reels of moving pictures made up the greater portion of the entertainment. Sunday morning union Sunday School was led by Prof. Sanders and in the afternoon Dr. Charles L. E. Cartwright delivered a lecture on "The Greatness of America." Before the opening of the evening session he gave a short talk on "The Chautauqua Idea." The chorus had a half hour service and a quartette composed of four ministers attending the Assembly sang several selections. They were Rev. W. C. Ney, Rev. Julius F. Seebach, Rev. George N. Lauffer and Rev. W. H. Hetrick.

At the union church service in the morning the sermon was preached by Dr. A. R. Steck, of York, the Chautauqua Chorus and the ministerial quartet sang.

The tent was crowded to hear Dr. Billheimer's lecture on "Esther" which was thoroughly enjoyed.

This evening a miscellaneous program will conclude the sessions of 1912.

PREVENTED RUNAWAY

By hanging to the bridle of one of the horses while a double team galloped three times around the Square George Toldes prevented a very serious runaway Sunday afternoon. The team, belonging to John Toddes, were hitched in an empty four seated wagon and when they started the Square was busy with a number of teams and people. The young man held on desperately and this alone prevented the horses from dashing full speed over the street. The only damage done was a broken trace.

CORNER STONE FOR NEW CHURCH

Impressive Service Held at Biglerville on Sunday. Addresses by Several Ministers. Contents of the Stone.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock an inspiring service was held at Biglerville when the corner stone of the new Trinity Reformed church was laid.

In the presence of a large number of people the liturgical service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Theodore C. Hossen, the articles being deposited in the niche and the stone formally laid after which the mason, N. E. Roth, adjusted and secured the same.

The audience then repaired to the adjoining Stonifer Grove where the remainder of the service was held. The Rev. Dr. D. B. Lady delivered an excellent address and the Revs. G. W. Millar of the Lutheran church at Wrightsville and A. G. Hummer, of the Methodist church at Anderson, Mo., were also present and took part in the service.

The articles placed in the niche were the Bible; the names of the persons appointed as a committee by Bender's congregation in January 1910 to choose a site for the church; duplicate copy of petition, signed by forty nine persons to Gettysburg classic, to be organized as a congregation; copy of minutes of Gettysburg classic; duplicate copy of minutes of meeting held in Thomas Hall, May 31, 1912, when Trinity congregation was organized; the names of the building committee; the contractors and of those taking part in the exercise of laying the corner stone; the Reformed Church Messenger, The Gettysburg Times, The Gettysburg Compiler, The Star and Sentinel, and The Adams County Independent.

The building is to be of brick and will cost about $6,000, half of which is already provided for.

NEW TRAINS THROUGH HERE

The opening of the new Western Maryland line known as the Connellsville extension will mean an increase in freight traffic through Gettysburg. The first train through here from this extension came from Pittsburgh Friday night and was bound for Fort Covington. It contained fifty six cars. Most of the freight goes straight from Pittsburgh to New York City.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie takes it to Connellsville. The Western Maryland handles it from Connellsville to Shippensburg. From that point the Philadelphia and Reading conveys it to Allentown and the Central Railroad of New Jersey hauls it from Allentown to New York.

Several carloads of horses have been shipped from Gettysburg to Pittsburgh over the new route.

"NOT MANY YEARS"

Some of our enthusiastic citizens hold the view that it will not be many years before we will have a much shorter route to Gettysburg than by Carlisle over the Cumberland Valley, or by the Western Maryland which necessitates changing cars at Edgemont. They contend that the time is coming when the line that runs to the lakes and banks will be strengthened and extended, cutting around or through the mountains into Adams County, and thence to Gettysburg—Chambersburg Public Opinion.

PENN GROVE CAMP

Special trains from York, Baltimore, Hanover and Intermittent points took thousands of United Brethren to the Penn Grove camp grounds Sunday for the services. With weather conditions agreeable the crowd proved to be a record breaker, there being more people there than on the corresponding Sunday of last year. The services of the day were carried out according to schedule, and the tabernacle was crowded at every service.

LEIB-SHELLY

Recently Miss Ellen Shelly and her mother, of Batton, near Boiling Springs, left for Seattle, Washington. On July 26 Miss Shelly was married to Hamilton M. Leib, formerly of Boiling Springs, by the Rev. G. E. McDonald, pastor of the First United Brethren church of that city. They will reside in Seattle, where the groom is a successful business man.

PROGRESSIVES IN SESSION

Senator Dixon Calls Convention to Order.

BEVERIDGE IS CHAIRMAN

Delegates From Nearly Every State in the Union Are Present and Many Have Opened Headquarters.

Chicago, Aug. 5. — With delegates present from nearly every state in the Union, the first national convention of the Progressive party was called to order in the Coliseum at noon today by Senator Dixon, chairman of the provisional national committee.

Former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, was elected temporary chairman. After delivering his speech the committee on resolutions and credentials were appointed. The convention then adopted a resolution inviting ex-President Roosevelt to address the convention tomorrow.

After adjournment the committee on resolutions turned their attention to framing the platform on which Roosevelt is to run for the presidency and which will represent the views of all classes of progressives who have joined the new party.

The committee on resolutions is to be peppered with all sorts and conditions of planks representing the personal ideas and desires of some of the most radical minds in the country. There is to be no stifling of suggestion or idea. The platform must represent concretely the views of all citizens in the new party who believe that conditions under the two old parties are adverse to the demands of the American people.

Nearly all the states have opened headquarters in the various hotels. In every respect the aspects of a great national convention have been assumed. The New Yorkers, the Californians and the Pennsylvanians have the finest headquarters. The original call for this convention stated that it was to consist of one member from each congressional district in every state. This representation would be just one-half of that in the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

Nearly all the states have responded to the call far more generously than its terms require. For instance, Connecticut, with five congressional districts and two United States senators, would be entitled under the call to seven delegates. Instead, Connecticut has sent forty-nine delegates, who in the proceedings of the convention will be entitled to one-seventh of a vote each. The same situation prevails in New York, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Massachusetts, California and nearly all the other states.

There developed a feeling to the effect that the national Progressive party should demonstrate in some way that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is not all there is to the party, and while he happens to be at the moment the man with the force and energy to represent the exigencies of the situation, many of the delegates began to express opinions to the effect that if there is any weakness to their party movement it is that they are relying altogether too much on the life of one man.

Some were free to say that if Colonel Roosevelt should pass away during the present campaign the National Progressive party would go to pieces. Such a contingency, they added, must be guarded against. And yet those who expressed these views confessed that they had no remedy for the situation which confronts them, but that they must fight on under Colonel Roosevelt, and whatever happened they must hope for long life for Roosevelt, certainly until the National Progressive party is firmly established, and this they declared would come to pass within two or three years.

A new name was suggested for vice president in General Basil Duke, of Kentucky. General Duke is nearly eighty years old, was a famous Confederate general and was one of the originators of the Palmer-Buckner gold Democratic movement in 1896.

Colonel Roosevelt, it is well known, favors a southern Democrat for vice president. He is partial to Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, or John M. Parker, of New Orleans. If it is decided to make an "east and west" ticket instead of an "east and south" ticket, Governor Hiram W. Johnson, of California, is most prominently under consideration.

Mount Etna Again in Eruption.
Rome, Aug. 5. — Mount Etna is again in eruption, fire, smoke and lava having suddenly burst forth from the crater. Several earthquakes, one of them severe, followed the eruption, arousing the population of Catania, who rushed into the streets panic-stricken. A dense column of smoke was rising from the main crater at midday and a new mouth has opened on the northeast side of the mountain, throwing out lava and hot stones. At present there seems to be no danger from the disturbance.

Eleven Boy Scouts Drowned.

WOMAN REVEALS ROYALIST PLOT

New Uprising is Planned in Portugal.

Lisbon, Aug. 5. — The government has learned of plans for a new royalist outbreak, said to have been arranged for Friday next.

The information came from a loyal republican, who learned of the plot from Ludovino Ruaz, an active royalist, among whose admirers he was numbered. The woman paid the penalty of her indiscretion when she was placed under arrest.

The government claims it has evidence that the conspirators contemplated seizing the ministers of state and the deputies and that General Conceicao was to make simultaneously a raid upon the capital from the north. Search is being made for the leaders of the conspiracy.

CLAIMS FATHER SOLD HER

Girl Declares She Was Twice Sold in Wedlock by Her Parent.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 5. — Claiming that her father, Dominick Stevens, of St. Johnsville, twice sold her into wedlock, the first time for $200 when she was fifteen years old, and the second time for $50 and a horse, Rose Stevens Spavin, aged seventeen, threatens to cause serious trouble for him.

The charge made by the young woman follows her arrest in Albany a few days ago on her father's complaint that she stole a horse and wagon belonging to him.

Subsequently the charge against the girl was dropped and her case has been brought to the attention of the district attorney.

Shortage of Sardines.

Eastport, Me., Aug. 5. — The failure of the sardine schools to visit the coast of Maine in their accustomed number this year has resulted in a shortage of the canning supply which threatens to send up the price of the fish for the year 1913. The cannery usually plan to close the season with a supply of 2,000,000 cases in stock, but this year, even with the 400,000 cases carried over, there appears little prospect of securing the normal product.

MOTORBOAT SUNK THREE DROWN

Hit by Steamer in Delaware Near Burlington.

ONLY ONE OF PARTY SAVED

The Little Craft Was Cut in Two by Freighter and Occupants Thrown Into the Water.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5. — Three men were drowned and another had a narrow escape from death when the John W. Garrett, of the Trenton freight line, ran down a motorboat in the Delaware river, opposite Burlington, N. J.

The motorboat was cut in two and the occupants were thrown into the water, where they were tossed about helplessly by the wash of the steamer.

Charles Tyler, twenty-eight years of age, of Burlington, was rescued by the crew of the John W. Garrett, but his three companions sank and did not come to the surface again.

The three men drowned were residents of Bristol, N. J. They were: Robert Heatherington, thirty-five years old, married.

George Van Dine, thirty-two years old, married.

John Scudder, twenty-nine years of age, single.

The saving of Tyler is remarkable in a way, because he has only one arm and was really the most helpless one of the party precipitated into the water. The steamer John W. Garrett was in charge of Captain George Vansant and Pilot Benjamin Hufish. They declare that the motorboat carried no lights and that the crash came without warning. When the steamer hit the smaller craft and the cries of the drowning men struggling in the water reached the ears of the crew the engines of the steamer were stopped and boats lowered.

The crew pulled about for an hour near the scene of the accident, but were able only to find Tyler, who was on the verge of giving up and sinking when they picked him up.

The three men drowned were identified by Squire Smith, of Burlington.

"I haven't the slightest idea," said Tyler, "who the men were. I was drinking in a barroom at Burlington, when these three fellows, who were nicely dressed, came in and had a few drinks. I got to talking with them and a little later they invited me to go for a ride on the river in their motorboat. I accepted, and we started to cruise around with no lights. When the crash came my three companions were drowned; there is no doubt about that, for they were not strong swimmers. One headed for the shore, but before he got very far he sank."

At Old Island, a short distance from Crisfield, the cottage of Edward Moore was blown off its foundation, but fortunately no one was injured. The building stood on a six-foot embankment.

CLASH IN NICARAGUA

Hostilities Followed Appointment of New Commander of Army. La Libertad, Salvador, Aug. 5.—Armed conflict is reported in Nicaragua between President Diaz and the revolutionists, headed by General Mena, former minister of war. Telegraphic communication between Nicaragua and Salvador is suspended, but information regarding the situation in Nicaragua was received here by a steamer which left San Juan del Sur three days ago.

The report is that hostilities followed the action of Diaz in appointing Emiliano Chamorro as commander-in-chief of the government forces. Mena, it is rumored, has been taken prisoner.

PROSPERITY REIGNS ALL OVER STATE

Philadelphia Press Says Industries Are Flourishing.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—The Press this morning says: "Throughout Pennsylvania prosperity is being spelled with a big P. All of the great steel and iron plants in the larger cities are rushed with orders, and the demand for workers far exceeds the supply."

It is estimated that 5000 men could easily find work in the Lehigh Valley alone.

The Pittsburgh district, with its steel mills working to capacity, is enjoying a business boom that promises to rival the days prior to the 1907 panic.

The enhancement in the value of the six leading Pittsburgh industries during July amounted to more than $1,000,000, and the recovery in the value of the stocks of seven concerns exceeds $33,000,000 since Jan. 1.

Big orders are keeping the Bethlehem Steel plant busy, and the two Bethlehem plants are experiencing a great building boom. About 1000 new houses will be built there.

In reading the fall business outlook has not been so bright in many years. There is a loud cry for workers, and industries of all kinds are in a flourishing condition.

With peace in the anthracite coal fields, the anthracite districts are experiencing the greatest business boom in years. Coal operators predict the coalfields will not be closed for a single day for two years. Business of all kinds as a result is booming.

York's large industries are rushed with orders, and Altoona is enjoying a banner year in building operations.

Seventy-five pieces of mail were sent out on this service by Postmaster Sutton, some of it for Germany and Canada, and the remainder for all parts of the United States.

Former Assemblyman Chris H. Hand received a telephone message from Reid at Stone Harbor, saying they had made the trip all right in thirty three minutes.

CONGRESS NEAR ADJOURNMENT

Closing by August 15 or 17 Expected.

TO RUSH THEIR WORK

With Postponement of Archbald Trial Remaining Bills Can Be Pushed to Finish.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Congress began today what is expected to be the last fortnight of the present session. Adjournment by Aug. 15 or 17 is confidently anticipated.

The postponement of the Archbald impeachment trial until Dec. 3 has cleared the decks of the senate so action on the remaining legislative problems can be pushed to a speedy finish.

Uncertainty exists as to the fate of some of the appropriation bills that are still at issue between the senate and house. The determination to abolish the commerce court and to place a seven-year tenure of office in the civil service law has aroused antagonism which may be reflected from the White House in the veto of a bill appropriating money for the salaries of federal employees.

This contingency has been anticipated by the leaders of both houses and an effort is to be made to complete the legislative-executive-judiciary appropriation bill so it may be sent at once to the president. In case of an executive veto it is believed it again can be considered, passed and resubmitted to him in amended form without seriously delaying plans for adjournment.

Action on tariff bills and a reopening of the two battleship fight in the house will be features of this week's session. The senate will act on the compromise tariff bill today and will probably agree to it, as the house has done. A meeting of the conference committee on the excise tax bill today or tomorrow is expected to result in an agreement that will send that measure also to President Taft during the week.

It has been asserted by the president's friends in both houses that he will veto all of the tariff bills that reach him. Such action would be accepted as final by congress and no attempt would be made at this session to re-pass the measures.

The Democrats of the house will take up the battleship question in caucus again tomorrow. The leaders in the fight for at least one new man-of-war in this year's naval building program succeeded in forcing the third caucus on the subject, and it is believed they will control the situation. If the house agrees to one ship the senate is expected to accept the compromise, although it wants two.

Many of the most important appropriation bills remain to be completed, and the senate has not as yet completed half of the expected debate on the Panama canal administration bill. Both houses will begin daily sessions at 10 o'clock this week, however, and probably will sit evenings from 8 to 12, making twelve hours daily. Under such circumstances business can be entirely disposed of, it is believed, within the time predicted by the advocates of early adjournment.

ASKS DIVORCE FOR LOVE

Aged Man Willing to Let Young One Have Wife He Can't Support.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 5.—Admitting that he was unable properly to support his fifty-year-old wife, Simon Koppel, seventy-seven years old, a rag picker, appeared with her at the clerk of the court's office and gave his consent to a divorce so that she might marry a younger man who could support her.

Koppel pledged that he loved his wife, and that because he loved her he was seeking to find a way to provide for her. Mrs. Koppel thought she could get the divorce at once, and both were disappointed when they were informed that this could not be done. They left arm-in-arm after being advised to see a lawyer.

The old man said he could easily make 10 cents a day with his business, but declared that his wife was not satisfied to live on that. They have four children, who were brought into court last fall and ordered to support their parents, but from what the old folks said, they are neglecting to do this.

NEGRO ACCEPTS THE JEWISH FAITH

Said to be First Colored Man to Embrace This Rite.

New York, Aug. 5.—Rufus L. Perry, a negro lawyer of Brooklyn, became a Jew when he went through various ceremonies at the hands of Rabbi Scheiner.

It was said that Perry is the first negro to have accepted this rite since the biblical instance of Ham, son of Noah, the supposed original progenitor of the African race.

Perry is thirty-eight years of age and single. He is a graduate of the New York university law school. As a criminal lawyer he has attained some fame.

Rabbi Scheiner was assisted by Rev. S. Meisels, a cantor, while a large congregation looked on. Perry made the following declaration: "I, Rufus Lewis Perry, do hereby decide to accept the Jewish religious faith and do hereby consent to and request the performance of the ceremony."

Perry was informed that "instead of Rufus you are named Raphael." As soon as the ceremony, which lasted fifteen minutes, was concluded, Perry's newly acquired Hebrew brothers began their fasting. Many prominent Hebrews were present.

SURGERY FOR KLEPTOMANIA

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 5.—In an operation here on the skull of John Howard, twenty-one years old, the confessed burglar, who has urged surgeons to operate in order that he may become an honest citizen, two Minneapolis doctors removed a tumor that was pressing upon his brain, besides lifting a depression of the bone over the right temple. They believe Howard will be cured of kleptomania.

Hot Oven Fatal Nursery.

Sterling, Ill., Aug. 5.—In order that the baby might not interfere with its mother, who was working nearby, the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Elias Frankfurter placed the infant on the door of an oven from which her mother had just taken a batch of bread. The red-hot metal burned the infant so badly that it could not recover.

Keziah Coffin

Author of "Cy Whitaker's Place," "Cap'n Ellery," Etc.

By Joseph C. Lincoln

Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

(Copyright, 1904, by D. Appleton & Company)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Mrs. Keziah Coffin, supposed widow, arriving to move from Trumet to Boston, following the death of her brother, for whom she had kept house. Grace Van Horne, ward of Capt. Eben Hammond, leader of the "Come-outer" religious sect, offers to assist her financially if she will remain. She declines. Kyan Pepper, widower, offers marriage, and is indignantly refused.

CHAPTER II—Capt. Eben Hammond, leader of the Regular church, offers Keziah a place as housekeeper for the new minister, and she decides to remain in Trumet.

CHAPTER III—Keziah takes charge of Rev. John Ellery, the new minister, and gives him advice as to his conduct toward members of the parish. Ellery causes a sensation by attending a "Come-outer" meeting.

CHAPTER IV—Ellery's presence is bitterly resented by Eben Hammond, leader of the meeting. Grace apologizes for her guardian and Ellery escorts her home in the rain. Capt. Nat Hammond, Eben's son, becomes a hero by bringing the parish into port safely through fog and storm. Ellery finds Keziah writing a letter to some one, inclosing money in response to a demand. She is curiously startled when informed of the arrival of Nat.

CHAPTER V—Nat calls on Keziah, and it develops that they have been lovers since youth. Daniels remonstrates with Ellery for attending "Come-outer" meetings.

CHAPTER VI—Ellery is caught by the tide and is rescued by Nat. They become friends.

CHAPTER VII—Ellery meets Grace while walking in the fields Sunday, and learns that she walks there every Sunday.

CHAPTER VIII.

In Which Miss Daniels Determines to Find Out.

The hysterical Mr. Pepper doubtless expected his clergyman to be almost as much upset as he was by the news of his action. But John Ellery was provokingly calm.

"Hush! Hush!" he commanded.

"Wait a minute. Let me understand this thing. Some one is locked up, you say. Who is it? Where?"

"Who is it? Ain't I tellin' you. It's Lavinia. She went into that spare room where I was t'other day and I slammed the spring lock to on her. Then I grabbed the key and run. That was afore three this afternoon; now it's 'most night and I ain't dast to go home. What'll she say when I let her out? I got to let her out, ain't I? She can't starve to death in there, can she? And you told me to do it! You did! Oh—"

"Well, then, I don't see why you can't go home and—hum—I don't like to advise your telling a lie, but you might let her infer that it was an accident. Or, if you really mean to be your own master, you can tell her you did it purposely and will do it again if she ever tries the trick on you."

"I tell her that! I tell her! O Mr. Ellery, don't talk so. You don't know Lavinia; she ain't like most women. If I should tell her that she'd—I don't know's she wouldn't take and horse-whip me. Or commit suicide. She's said she would afore now if—"

"Nonsense! She won't do that, you needn't worry. He burst into another laugh, but checked himself, as he saw the look of absolute distress on poor Kyan's face.

"Never mind, Mr. Pepper," he said.

"We'll think of some plan to smooth matters over. I'll go home with you now and we'll let her out together."

The little house was dark and still as they approached it.

They entered. The dining room was dark and quiet. So was the sitting room. The clock ticked, solemn and slow. Kyan's trembling knees managed to carry him to the little hall leading from the sitting room toward the ell at the side of the house. This hall was almost pitch black.

"Here—here, 'tis," panted Kyan.

"Here's the door. I don't hear nothin', do you? Listen!"

They listened. Not a sound, save the dismal tick of the clock in the room they had left. Ellery knocked on the door.

"Miss Pepper," he said; "Miss Pepper, are you there?"

Silence, absolute. Abishai could stand it no longer. He groaned and collapsed on his knees.

"She has!" he moaned. "She done it and there ain't nothin' in there but her remains. Oh, my soul!"

Ellery, now rather frightened himself, shook him violently.

"Be quiet, you idiot!" he commanded.

"We must go in. Give me the key."

After repeated orders and accompanying shakings, Kyan produced a key. The minister snatched it from his trembling fingers, felt for the key-hole and threw the door open. The little room was almost as dark as the hall and quite as still. There was a distinct smell of old clothes and camphor. The minister was going after a match, and said so. In a moment he returned with several. One of these he lit. The brimstone sputtered, burned blue and fragrant, then burst into a yellow flame.

The little room was empty.

John Ellery drew a breath of relief. Then he laughed.

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "She's gone. Come into the sitting room, light a lamp, and let's talk it over."

The lamp was found and lighted at last. Its radiance brightened the dingy sitting room. The sound of wheels was heard in the lane by the front gate. A vehicle stopped. Then some one called a hurried good night. Mr. Pepper's fear returned.

"It's her!" he cried. "She's been ahuntin' for me. Now I'll get it! You stand by me, Mr. Ellery. You got to. You said you would. But how on earth did she get out—"

His sister appeared on the threshold. She was dressed in her Sunday best, flowered poke bonnet, mitts, imitation India shawl, rustling black bombazine gown. She looked at Mr. Pepper, then at the minister.

"O Mr. Ellery!" she exclaimed, "be you here?"

The Reverend John admitted his presence. Miss Pepper's demeanor surprised him. She did not seem angry; indeed, she acted embarrassed and confused, as if she, and not her brother, were the guilty party.

"I'm awfully sorry, Mr. Ellery," gushed Lavinia, removing the bonnet. "You see, I was invited out to ride this afternoon and—and I went." She glanced at her brother, reddened—yes, almost blushed—and continued.

"You know, 'Bishy," she said, "Thankful Payne's cousin's home avistin' her. He come about that cousin's will—the other cousin that's just died. He's a real nice man—her live cousin is—keeps a shoe store up to Sandwich, and I used to know him years ago. When I was over to Thankful's t'other day, him and me had quite a talk. We got speakin' of what nice drives there was around Trumet and—and—er—well, he asked me if I wouldn't like to go to ride next Sunday afternoon—that's today. And a ride bein' a good deal of a treat to me, I said I would. Thankful was goin' too, but—er—she couldn't very well. So Caleb—that's his name, you remember, 'Bishy—"

—he come round with his horse and team about half past three and we started. But I'd no idee 'twas so late. I—I—meant to tell you I was goin' 'Bishy, but I forgot."

"I'm so sorry I kept you waitin' supper," gushed Lavinia. "I'll get you a good one now. Oh, well, deary me! I must be gettin' absent-minded. I ain't asked you where you've been all the afternoon."

Abishai's eyes turned beseechingly toward his promised backer. Ellery could not resist that mute appeal.

"Your brother has been with me for some time, Miss Pepper," he volunteered.

"Oh, has he? Ain't that nice! He couldn't have been in better company, I'm sure. But, oh, say, 'Bishy! I ain't told you how high I come to not gettin' out at all. Just afore Mr. Payne come, I was in that spare room and—"

—you remember I put a spring lock on that door? Well, when I was in there this afternoon the wind blew the door shut, the lock clicked, and there I was. If I hadn't had the other key in my pocket I don't know's I wouldn't have been in there yet. That would have been a pretty mess, wouldn't it! He! he! he!"

The Reverend John did not answer. He could not trust himself to speak just then. When he did it was to announce that he must be getting toward home. No, he couldn't stay for supper.

Miss Pepper went into the kitchen, and Abishai saw the visitor to the door. Ellery extended his hand and Kyan shook it with enthusiasm.

"Wa'n't it fine?" he whispered. "Talk about your miracles! Godfrey's mighty! Say, Mr. Ellery, don't you ever tell a soul how it really was, will you?"

"No, of course not."

"No, I know you won't. You won't

He Sprang Forward and Caught Her About the Waist.

tell on me and I won't tell on you. That's a trade, hey?"

The minister stopped in the middle of his step.

"What?" he said, turning.

Mr. Pepper merely smiled, winked, and shut the door. John Ellery reflected much during his homeward walk.

The summer in Trumet drowsed on, as Trumet summers did in those days, when there were no boarders from the city, no automobiles or telephones or "antique" collectors. The Sunday dinners with the Daniels family were almost regular weekly functions now. He dodged them when he could, but he could not do so often without telling an absolute lie, and this he would not do. And, regularly, when the solemn meal was eaten, Captain Elkanah went upstairs for his nap and the Reverend John was left alone with Annabel. Miss Daniels did her best to be entertaining, was, in fact, embarrassingly confidential and cordial. It was hard work to get away, and yet, somehow or other, at the stroke of four, the minister always said good-by and took his departure.

"What is your hurry, Mr. Ellery?" begged Annabel on one occasion when the reading of Moore's poems had been interrupted in the middle by the guest's sudden rising and reaching for his hat. "I don't see why you always go so early. It's so every time you're here. Do you call at any other house on Sunday afternoons?"

"No," was the prompt reply. "Oh, no."

"Mrs. Rogers said she saw you going across the fields after you left here last Sunday. Did you go for a walk?"

"Er—er—yes, I did."

"I wish you had mentioned it. I love to walk, and there are so few people that I find congenial company. Are you going for a walk now?"

"Why, no—er—not exactly."

Below Evergreen Cemetery, on Baltimore Turnpike.

"I'm sorry, Good-by. Will you come again next Sunday? Of course you will. You know how dreadfully disappointed I—well—shall be if you don't."

"Thank you, Miss Daniels. I enjoyed the dinner very much. Good afternoon."

He hurried down the path. Annabel watched him go. Then she did an odd thing. She passed through the sitting room, entered the front hall, went up the stairs, tiptoed by the door of her father's room, and then up another flight to the attic. From here a steep set of steps led to the cupola on the roof. In that cupola was a spyglass.

Annabel opened a window a few inches, took the spyglass from its rack, adjusted it, laid it on the sill of the open window and knelt, the glass at her eye. The floor of the cupola was very dusty and she was wearing her newest and best gown, but she did not seem to mind.

Through the glass she saw the long slope of Cannon Hill, with the beacon at the top and Captain Mayo's house near it. The main road was deserted save for one figure, that of her late caller. He was mounting the hill in long strides.

She watched him gain the crest and pass over it out of sight. Then she shifted the glass so that it pointed toward the spot beyond the curve of the hill, where the top of a thick group of silver-leaved trees hid the parsonage. Above the tree tops glistened the white steeple of the Regular church. If the minister went straight home she could see him. But under those silver-leaves was the beginning of the short cut across the fields where Didama had seen Mr. Ellery walking on the previous Sunday.

Slowly she moved the big end of the spyglass back along the arc it had traveled. She found a speck and watched it. It was a man, striding across the meadow land, a half mile beyond the parsonage, and hurrying in the direction of the beach. She saw him climb a high dune, jump a fence, cross another field and finally vanish in the grove of pines on the edge of the bluff by the shore.

The man was John Ellery, the minister. Evidently, he had not gone home, nor had he taken the short cut. Instead he had walked downtown a long way and then turned in to cross the fields and work his way back.

Annabel put down the glass and, heedless of her father's call, sat thinking. The minister had deliberately deceived her. More than that, he had gone to considerable trouble to avoid observation. Why had he done it? Had he done the same thing on other Sunday afternoons? Was there any real reason why he insisted on leaving the house regularly at four o'clock?
